A Reader extension for your Reddit account on Chrome, to save you some pain. Easily apply themes and fonts to your reader. Edit the theme with simple controls. View all comments at once. Highlight certain comments for quick follow-ups. Download the Readr for Reddit chrome extension Readr for Reddit is currently available as a free and open-source extension for Google Chrome, but the extension author encourages you to donate in order to support his work. That said, if you can't stand some ads (which are unfortunately a part of the Internet), then we'd suggest donating a few bucks via paypal. It would be most appreciated. As for now, there's no way to deactivate the ads that Readr for Reddit is currently serving, but the author has explained that this problem will soon be fixed. If so, the extension should turn out to be a valuable addition to our toolbox of Reddit-related extensions. Have some questions about Readr for Reddit? Feel free to drop them in the comments section below, where they will be answered by the author himself. The enzyme catalase of Leishmania has been purified to homogeneity, and the protein has been isolated in homogeneous form by gel filtration and ion exchange chromatography. The properties of this enzyme are being investigated with respect to the roles played by the heme, Fe(III) ion, H₂O₂ and the active site thiols. Kinetic studies show that catalase activity is an ordered process and is sensitive to the presence of the active site thiol. Spectral studies have shown that the heme is coordinated by the active site thiolate and the delta 2-pyrrole ring nitrogen. Studies with thioglycollate as the inhibitor show that the pyrrole nitrogen is not involved in the formation of the thioglycollate-ferric enzyme-product complex. Studies with H₂O₂ as the substrate show that the pyrrole ring nitrogen is partially or fully oxidized. We have also determined the rate of oxidation and reduction of the heme iron. Spectral studies have shown that the heme iron is reduced to the ferrous state. Q: Searching for negative value in array? I have an array: string[] x = { "a", "a", "a", "b", "b", "b", "c", "c" }; How can I look for all
