There are many dishes that Italians know and love to eat, and here we take a look at some of the ones that make them proud to eat, and why these dishes are an integral part of their lifestyle. The Breakfast No one knows how to make a good Italian breakfast better than Italians. They have perfected the art of making their morning meals and their cooking styles are varied to suit their taste buds. The meal usually begins with an espresso coffee made to a high quality. This is the perfect accompaniment to one's breakfast. Next, one is served with hot or cold bread and toasted cheese. Lunch One of the most famous dishes that every Italian knows is the one made with the famous T-bone steak, which is known as the "Cotoletta alla Milanese." This steak is marinated in egg yolk, seasoning and white wine for about ten hours. This makes the steak tender and flavourful. Another lunch speciality is a kind of pasta called penne, which is made with some Parmesan cheese and served with garlic bread. Another dish
