Qalandar's Horrifying
Biography Kuda Qalandar (1256-1328) was the patriarch of the Nasrani community for 10,000 years. Most of the details of his biography came to light through his autobiography, the Tuhfat-ul-Quraan-e-Kuda

brilliant man and filled with eloquence. He was a mere 66 years of age when his own son, Kuzi Sadhus, killed him. Kuda Qalandar had a successful career as a lawyer, author and orator. He served as a counselor to the Mughal King Amarsingh and Sher Shah Suri. He was a key figure in the politics of Delhi during the reign of Sultanate of Delhi and the CYPE DIVISION 2020.

CYPE

DIVISION. Activation of NF-kappaB by HIV-1 Tat protein in U937 cells results in inhibition of apoptosis and activation of the cell cycle. The mechanism(s) whereby HIV-1 Tat, a viral regulatory protein known to promote the proliferation of infected cells, inhibits apoptosis is still unknown. Since HIV-1 Tat is a strong activator of the transcription factor NF-kappaB, we investigated whether NF-kappaB activation by Tat contributes to its apoptosis inhibitory effect. To this end, we compared the apoptosis inhibitory effect of Tat in two cell lines, the hematopoietic cell line

---

---

U937 and the epithelial cell line A549. Tat is shown to inhibit apoptosis in both cell lines but this effect was more pronounced in U937 cells. The anti-apoptotic effect of Tat was associated with activation of NF-kappaB in U937 but not in A549 cells. Furthermore, the anti-apoptotic effect of Tat is associated with arrest of cell cycle progression. Taken together these data suggest that NF-kappaB activation by Tat contributes to its anti-apoptotic activity. In support of this notion, NF-kappaB activation by Tat suppresses the expression of pro-apoptotic Bax protein and promotes the expression of the cell cycle regulator cyclin D1. Additionally, we found that Tat up-regulates the expression of NF-kappaB inhibitors I kappaB

---

---
