Could someone tell me how to accomplish this? I have done my best searching the library docs, googled, and found nothing. Maybe I've done it wrong, but the library doesn't specify it. Also, any tips are welcome. I'd rather learn C++ than java, and I'm able to learn C++. A: Based on what I am able to understand from the headers, from the sample signed_minimal.php (which I did not test as I don't have a sample certificate signed_minimal.php) it seems that the library uses signed_minimal.php as a reference implementation of the RFC5652 (Based on that, after the generated certificate is signed with the appropriate private key as specified in RFC5652, then it is encoded using the following steps: Create ASN.1 DER object of the one or more certificate objects for the certificate Convert the base 64 encoded certificate to
