The boys are outside this afternoon building a snowman. Its time for cold and flu season to be over. Let's hope its a mild one this year. There are several things you can do to stay healthy in cold weather. * Vitamin D: You can't get vitamin D from food. You need to get it from sun exposure. You can also get it by taking a prescription vitamin D supplement. * Breast milk and formula: Try to increase your exposure to sunlight. Also look for Vitamin D fortified foods such as milk, orange juice, and yogurt. This is especially important for babies and toddlers. Vitamin D deficiency can lead to rickets or other bone diseases. * Vitamin C: Increase your fruit and vegetable intake. It's easy to increase your intake of fruit and vegetables during the winter because many fruits and vegetables are available all year round. However, avoid salads because they are often prepared with the "wrong" types of oil. * Starchy foods: Because it's cold outside, it can be hard to keep up your energy. It's important to get some starchy foods in your diet to give you the energy you need. This can be in the form of a hot breakfast, lunch, or dinner. Try a potato or some grains to give you some energy. * Tea: Studies show that drinking tea may help you feel warmer. Drinking it regularly can also help reduce sickness and colds. * Gluten: During cold and flu 2d92ce491b
