AirPhotoServer works hand in hand with AirPhotoViewer (which can be launched from an iOS device) but it is also able to function as a standalone photo web server. 10 Reviews Thank you! By jason, 23-Jun-2015 Overall, great app. I've been using it for a couple months now, and it's by far the best photo hosting app on the iPhone. If you're looking for a nice app to share your photos on the go, it's worth the money. One thing though. One of the core features of the app was the ability to edit, delete, and add albums to your pictures. This functionality is gone now. It no longer exists, I'd suggest going back to the main page and looking for the app you downloaded. If you can't find it, just install it and it will replace this older version. A lot of people were complaining about the update's design, but I didn't think it was too bad at first, but that's because I used the old version a lot. The new update is actually very good, the only problem is that it doesn't let you change the picture size. It only has these fixed sized thumbnails, which I don't really like. I use the app a lot, and the fixed sized thumbnails don't fit into my little screen, the only solution I found was to click on the little image and scale it, which isn't really useful. The developers should have considered the screen sizes of all users when implementing the new update. It's a very good app, and it's definitely worth the price, but I do have a couple of minor issues with it. This app is amazing. I've been using it for a couple of months now, and I'm very happy with it. It's the perfect app if you're looking for a nice app to share your photos on the go. The only problem I have with it is that the app doesn't let you change the picture size. The pictures that you upload are displayed in fixed sized thumbnails that don't fit into my little iPhone screen. This problem has been fixed now, but I just don't like the fixed sized thumbnails. The developers should have considered the screen sizes of all users when implementing the new update. A lot of What's New in the?

AirPhotoServer is the server of AirPhotoViewer, a software application designed specifically for helping you view your photos from your computer to your Apple device (iPad, iPhone, iPod touch). This utility acts as a server and makes it possible for you to share your pictures and songs over Wi-Fi connections. AirPhotoServer works hand in hand with AirPhotoViewer (which can be launched from an iOS device) but it is also able to function as a standalone photo web server. Simple looks The tool adopts a clean and minimalistic design that enables you to access the Home panel where you can view general information about your PC name, state and IP address. Additionally, you may set up a master password for making sure other users cannot gain access to your private information. Managing photos, files and music AirPhotoServer gives you the possibility to build up separate lists with the photos, files and audio items that you want to share. You can only make use of the built-in browse button, as there's no support for drag-and-drop. What's more, you can open the target locations where all your files are stored directly from the main panel of the application, remove the selected items from the list, tweak several photo settings (enable or disable cache thumbnails, deletion and uploading options, and RAW format), and turn on the Air-Access mode for sharing files on the Internet. Web-driven interface The web-driven layout proves to be particularly handy especially if you want to quickly access your files right from your web browser, be it Chrome, Firefox, Internet Explorer, Opera or another one. You may switch between different display modes (big or small thumbnails, square or rectangle thumbnail form), click on a target photo for viewing it enlarged, go to the previous or next item from the list, as well as start a slideshow. Plus, you can advantage of your web browser's capabilities and copy the picture to the clipboard, export the selected item to JPG file format, as well as email the photo or set it as your desktop background. The built-in audio player gives you the freedom to listen to audio files, adjust the volume and seek for a position in the audio streams. Plus, you can upload documents from your computer and view them displayed in a list along with information about their name and size. A few configuration settings Several configuration settings offer you the freedom to turn on the web access feature, enter the port number, automatically look for updates and run the utility at Windows startup, as well as activate or disable several services, such as files, music and photos. Bottom line All things considered, AirPhotoServer delivers a simple software solution for helping you set up a photo web server, and is suitable for all types of users, regardless of their experience level.
