KEYmacro is a powerful and feature-rich application for macros and hotkeys. Its flexibility means you can create unlimited macros and hotkeys to automate or extend the functionality of various programs. KEYmacro is one of the few Windows programs that can use both the traditional Windows and Microsoft OS X and Linux keystrokes and mouse movements for its functionality. KEYmacro allows you to specify a hotkey or a series of hotkeys that can be mapped to a mouse movement or keystroke. For example, when you press the F9 key or hold down the ALT key, you can trigger the macro. For example, you can use the Hotkey2 Macro function to send the mouse clicks or keystrokes to different programs. This is useful if you are configuring your computer for several purposes but want certain keystrokes or mouse movements to be used only for one program. The macro can be run automatically when you press a hotkey or after you set a delay time. For example, you can create a macro that sends the mouse clicks and keystrokes to a Windows program and sends a phone call to your phone. When you press the F9 key or hold down the ALT key for four seconds, the call is sent automatically. KEYmacro is extremely flexible as it allows you to customize its macro actions. You can create hotkeys or macro actions that can be either one-time events or run repeatedly at a set time. The following table gives an example of some of the key features of the application.
