. While he finally spoke into the phone, his voice cracked. “I can’t even bear this. I’m going to fucking cry, right now. My life is ruined.” We’d been through a lot, especially when it came to the five years he’d spent living in his van. But the police said he must’ve been trading as much as ten thousand dollars a week in and out of the U.S., and that he’d pretty much blown his fortune. He was inching towards $3 million gone, with no way to get back to the top of the mountain. I’d met his family only briefly. I'd spent three years doing time for what he called "the worst shit I'd ever been involved with." My mother had never forgiven me for the trouble I'd caused. She told my father that she couldn't have anything to do with my
