The purpose of this report was to describe the development and implementation of a teaching resource, combining self-viewing and communicative intentions, namely, the combination of communicative intentions with self-viewing, in a summative evaluation (S.V.E. and C.V.E.). This method allows students to develop their perception of a patient, self-view themselves and each other and reflects the communication challenges students encounter in the classroom. The resource, which is provided in a web-based format, was completed by nursing and health science students from both veterinary and medical schools. The students' perceptions and comments of the content and format of the tool were evaluated and used to iteratively improve the tool. The S.V.E. and C.V.E. method provided a transparent framework for evaluators to establish a common understanding of the context and goals. The use of this method provides a comprehensive understanding of multiple perspectives which provides a foundation for evidence-based practice in the clinical setting.Bloomingdale, Minnesota Bloomingdale is a city in Fillmore County, Minnesota, United States. A modern training of the lower extremities inevitably includes functional electrical stimulation. We assessed influence of subthreshold current on microcirculation in healthy subjects. The experiments were performed in 9 healthy young men. The circulation on plantar skin was examined with laser Doppler flowmetry (LDF) before and after electrical stimulation. It was shown that the effect of electrical stimulation was low. After electrical stimulation the LDF decreases at the foot dorsum, forefoot, and hallux and increases in 3e33713323
