I hope everyone is having a lovely week so far, I'm here to share another post with you, about another place in the Philippines that I'm in love with. I haven't had a chance to go there yet, so if you're ever in Makati or other parts of the metro I'm sure you'd love to come visit me. If you want to visit, let me know and we can coordinate it! This is about the last hotel that I would show you in this post, because I'd like to show you a few more in the next one. That hotel is the one that I got to stay in Makati as I attended a very small conference and also where I did a lot of shopping in the area. If you want to know more about that hotel, check out this post: Hotel Du Parc Makati. You'll get to see more about that, and also pictures of that place as well. It's a more beautiful hotel, as you can see from the pictures, I really loved it. I'm sorry that there are no more pictures of the rooms. I'll have to go back one day to do that because I didn't get to take any more with me. The room I got to stay in was just so amazing! I can't think of how to describe it! It's so unique, so well-decorated, I'm sure you'll love it. The design is just lovely, and I'm not ashamed to say that I almost fell in love with it on the first day. The bed was sooo comfortable, I don't even know how to describe it. The pillows are so soft, there's not a lump in them. They also have a remote so that you can turn the music on or off if you want. The bathroom was just perfect, I love the design. It was spacious and had a lot of storage, a great shower and a jacuzzi tub. There's no doubt that this was one of the best hotels that I've
