I have a controller which has a button on the web page. I am able to sort the records in the model. How can I have this behavior in the controller? Since its a web application, I am using .Net MVC. I think you would be able to figure out what I am talking about. A: You can use a sorting parameter. In the GET action method of your controller: public ActionResult ControllerAction(int? sortDirection) In your view you can add: @Html.ActionLink("your action link text", "ControllerAction", "YourControllerName", new { sortDirection = "asc" }, null) This should be enough and you don't need to change your model so much. Bio-refinery of sweet potato extracts for high value-added compounds: Antioxidant, antimicrobial and proteolytic activities of hydrolysates. In the present study, the polysaccharides extracted from sweet potato (Stevioside) and their hydrolysate were fractionated. The hydrolysates were characterized by Fourier transform infrared spectroscopy (FTIR), UV-Visible spectrum, TLC, and Scanning Electron Microscopy (SEM). There were several functional groups in the extractives of the sweet potato. The number of the
