Microsoft Indexing Service indexes the information about the files stored in the archives. With this service the tool can search the files that exist in the archives. Microsoft Indexing Service represents the metadata of the files that are stored in the archive or databases. The data are represented in XML and can be saved to the database. After the indexing operation you can search the archived files using the Query Tool or Search Tool. The Microsoft Indexing Service supports the indexing of files with metadata, without metadata and as images (the last can be done in the Offline or Online modes). You can use SQL Server, Microsoft Query, Microsoft Excel, Microsoft Access or any other database engine to store the data about the files that will be indexed. The indexes are created in the following formats: FAST format \(default\) BZ2 format ZIP format \(search of files within ZIP archives\) RAR format \(search of files within RAR archives\) ARJ format \(search of files within ARJ archive\) ISO 9660 format FAT 12/16/32 format \(search of files within
