DataProtectionDecryptor

DPAPI decryption software for Windows 7 and Windows Server 2008 R2 DPAPI stands for Data Protection API and was designed by Microsoft as an exclusive means for storing account passwords. Features: It is a simple and easy to use utility to decrypt passwords encrypted with DPAPI You can save recovered DPAPI passwords to a file Reviews of DataProtectionDecryptor Liesure(verified owner) — July 5, 2015 This is a "must have" application if you want to decrypt your passwords that were encrypted with DPAPI. However, the author didn't mention that he needs latest Windows (i.e. Windows 8.1 & 10) or at least some updates on Windows 7. I tested that program with Windows 10 and it couldn't decrypt anything (it said 'invalid password'). Anon(verified owner) — December 18, 2014 This program doesn't have any updates for the last 5 years, and I think that maybe is obsolete since it depends on a windows version that isn't supported anymore by any company (especially MS) and a lot of features are also not supported. I decided to write a review for this application because i found it on a reliable free software repository (Deb), however it was too confusing to find the download link and even difficult to use. It was too complicated and not user friendly. You have to start the process to get your password, do some things with a configuration panel and a lot of security options. Even the installation file appears to be corrupted. (I decided to make this post before not testing the program anymore because the download link leads to nowhere, and i have enough of software that is not executable. Read the review of the program that worked better for me, unfortunately this program doesn't seem to be alive. I recommend the download link in this review. It is a real executable.) The safest way to recover passwords encrypted with DPAPI in Windows is to use special DPAPI tools. The native Windows utility called DragonKey is a strong DPAPI decryptor. This tool is not a stand-alone exe file but an easy-to-use setup file you can run to decrypt DPAPI passwords (and other key details) saved in system registries. After running this program, all the secret data can be exported into a portable file in a safe place or to a file on a USB thumb drive. Note 09e8f5149f

DataProtectionDecryptor Crack

At the moment, the application is free to use but is subject to a few limitations. The full version unlocks the autocreates registry and execution code inside the Lsass.exe process, the decryptor's hotkey (CTRL+G), and adds multi-user support. Other features include document-protection support, clipboard access, and the option to save passwords to any file in the specified path. Just copy and paste one or more DPAPI-encrypted strings in the string bar, choose a Windows login password from the list and click the button to retrieve all encrypted content. The results are visible on the bottom side of the window and you can export the recovered passwords to your preferred format. Manage Recovery Keys with DataProtectionDecryptor When DPAPI is enabled, DataProtectionDecryptor will ask you for a system-generated recovery key at the time of its execution. This key may be used instead of a system stored decryption key for recovering passwords, files or registry entries. Please note that this recovery key is generated by the tool and will not be stored with a reference or path in the registry, making it out of reach of most Windows systems. To recover the stored decryption key, you can then remove the protection on the string and copy it in the string bar. Why DataProtectionDecryptor? Some people are still naive and don't know how to decrypt passwords and other information encrypted with Data Protection API. DataProtectionDecryptor can help you decode passwords and other secret information safely and easily. Our tool can try to decrypt information by executing code inside the Lsass.exe process.

DataProtectionDecryptor FAQ What other reasons are there to use DataProtectionDecryptor?
