What's New in the DiskSpaceMon?

DiskSpaceMon is an easy-to-use disk space monitoring tool designed to monitor the free space in your hard drive. If the available space falls below a certain amount, a tray icon pops up to alert you. You can specify... The Big Issue by Lorna Blackworth This is a slightly extended version of Lorna's commentary on her poems in the Big Issue. The Big Issue is a quarterly magazine of poetry, short stories, photography and cultural commentary. The magazine is known for its artwork and editorial design. It was started in 1971 as a way of bringing home truths from the stark and traditional frontlines of the poverty wars at the time. Since then it has gone from strength to strength and is well known for its poetic nature, where the heartache and pain of the communities in and around North Yorkshire is captured in images and words that help us better understand why we are all here. I offer this because of the important role it plays in terms of bringing the community together and putting into action what little is left of the community spirit that once existed in its streets. I cannot help but reflect on the many events in my life that I view in the Big Issue. It was used to organise the first job I found. It used to deliver my mail, and so I got to know and to appreciate the people who delivered my mail, who I would otherwise never have met. I loved some of the paintings on the cover of the magazine as I became familiar with the writers and poets that were inside. My first experience of the Big Issue was when I was 17. I saw an advertisement in the Big Issue that used an old photocopy that I had accidentally left behind, scanned it and somehow made it into an advertisement. If I remember correctly the ad was for a local company that wanted a man to remove lead paint from its windows. At the time I was doing a course in Interpreting and could translate the language of the advertising copy into our own. Which made the piece of work I did a whole lot more convincing. The Big Issue is a part of our culture that makes people feel valued. It is very easy to tell when the Big Issue is being delivered to your door. It is there, the street cleaners get it first. The weatherman gets it a week or two later, along with the press. It is delivered to businesses and the colleges. We have all felt
