Ask HN: My project is down - david927 I built but it is down because I forgot to renew my GoDaddy domain name. I also forgot to renew my yearly hosting package. I can move the files to a new site, but I don't know how to add them back in. Can I upload my files? I have a couple of GoDaddy accounts, so I'm hoping to use one. Can I do this? ===== Mankhool 1\ Renew your domain with the same service. 2\ Renew your hosting with the same service. 3\ Move your site to new host. 4\ Modify your DNS settings. Best of luck! ~~~ david927 Thanks. I can't do #2 because I moved to Linode in July, and GoDaddy didn't respond to emails. I only have one account. I don't know how to do #4. I'm at the point of having to do #3 because there's nothing that I can do to use it. ---- paranoiac 1\ Check your GoDaddy account (if you use the same email address for everything) 2\ Make sure to redirect / point to the new domain 3\ If you're using something like Zend Framework 1.11, you can simply use Zend_Application::init(array('bootstrap' => 'path/to/bootstrap.php')) to override the Zend_Application Bootstrap, and have the app notice the path to your current bootstrap file. 4\ You can either check your DNS records, or simply look up how to change it on your domain registrar. ----- Ixias Have you considered a different platform? I'm assuming your service is down, you don't have the money to pay for hosting and you don't have the time (or are unable) to write it from scratch. Why not use ? It's a tool to generate Twitter feeds with pictures, stories, and other fun stuff for Twitter users. They're new but they have a lot of momentum. ----- worken

Arctic Organics: Organic Beeswax Soap Product Description Product Description Arctic Organics: Organic Beeswax Soap. We take the beeswax from the colonies in Northern Sweden and we use it to make soap that is nothing like what is found in any store. This soap is quite pleasant, and has a slight pine scent. It is completely natural, which means that no additives are used to make it stay soft. Although this soap is made in the winter, it is made entirely of beeswax, which is well suited to handle the cold Scandinavian winters. Related Products A little practice and experience with soap making can make you a professional. It takes a little bit of time to master the craft. Although you can make this soap at home, it is best to follow a basic recipe. You will need about a cup of sugar, and a cup of vegetable oil. To make a batch of this soap, you will need about 6 cups of water, which is half of the recipe. Although this soap is labeled as natural, it is actually quite toxic, and will cause skin irritation if used on your skin. You should be cautious when using this soap, as it can cause serious damage to your skin. However, soap is definitely worth learning how to make. It can be used on your body, and even as a replacement for shampoo or conditioner.

Ingredients The natural preservatives used in this soap are soapwort, stearic acid, and xanthum gum. The plant sulfur, which is used in this soap, comes from the melissa plant. The plant is also known as the soapwort, and comes from the mint family. The soapwort itself is a perennial plant, and is found in the Mediterranean, and is often found growing wild in Northern Europe. This plant is also known to have medicinal qualities, as it is used to treat fever, and has anti-viral and anti-bacterial properties. Sulfur is added to this soap for the same reason that it is added to soaps made in Northern Sweden. It is added to give a pleasant scent to the soap, as well as to harden it. The fact that the sulfur in this soap comes from the plant itself, means that it doesn't have any side effects. This soap is made from pure vegetable oil, and
