I hope that my readers will be interested to know my impressions of how and what views domestic sex slaves hold. "The end of the X century. Muslims rule India. For the next three centuries, Hindus professed Hinduism with its caste system. However, already in the middle of the 20th century, when radical religious reforms took place in the country, such as: the creation of the so-called atheistic state, the rejection of the cult of Kali, the revival of Islam, the struggle for the purity of religion, Hindus began to realize that the adoption of Islam could have negative consequences. for the country and for the people living in it. Driven by a sense of national unity, the Hindus strongly condemned these, in their opinion, manifestations of heresy and discrimination. In 1947, as a result of tripartite negotiations between the government, India and Pakistan, the so-called "Treaty of Guarantee and Recognition" was signed. In accordance with this agreement, the Hindus retained the right to engage in traditional national activities on their territory, but in return they had to abandon their caste system. Considering the fact that India is a majority Muslim population, the change of religion could cause a mixed reaction. The implanted new religion, similar to the Judeo-Christian, was practiced at that time in Muslim countries, mainly in Muslim communities. The main population of India and Pakistan are Hindus, so the fate of the Hindus could not be as simple as, for example, the fate of the Muslims, and their faith was persecuted. The rejection of caste and habitual rituals was of great importance for the Hindus, so radical changes at the state level reacted without much excitement to what was happening. Most Hindus accepted the new religion with great reluctance, and this was quite natural, since they were ordinary Hindus who adhered to Hindu religious beliefs. The popularity of the new cult was huge and went to an unprecedented step for those years, i. ... But where does all this crap come from: http
