Q: How to properly integrate AngularJS(2) with NodeJS(Express)? I'm learning NodeJS now. My question is how to proper integrate AngularJS(2) with NodeJS(Express) to get an idea of how the foundation(NodeJS + Express) works. I want to know how to integrate them, not Angular(2) with NodeJS(Express) framework. A: your very first step should be to get a node.js framework, such as express, but for this question, you should know that Express is an API made by adding middlewares to the routes provided by Node.js. The middlewares is what middleware is about, which transforms the request and prepares them to handle your react code Then you should read documentation of the API you are using, and practice creating the API before using it with your Angular2 code. Here is a great tutorial to get you started The Internet is a worldwide collection of millions of computers and computer networks that are linked together through various communications media. The Internet is based on the TCP/IP suite of protocols, and is currently growing at a rate of hundreds of millions of people every day. The World Wide Web (WWW) is a specific implementation of the Internet. The WWW is a client/server-based navigation system, and it is the most successful information-dissemination system in history. The Web is a system for accessing linked information—that is, documents, media, and other resources located on different computers. The Web is, essentially, the Web Browser. The Web Browser is a special-purpose software program that runs on the user's computer to navigate the Web. A web browser is able to communicate with Web servers and Web files. A web browser makes a request from a web server for information and receives a response with data files. A web server is a type of host computer on the Internet that provides resources such as documents or multimedia files for retrieval by other computers. Web servers offer their services to the public by providing a "Web site." The Internet is made up of a distributed system of thousands upon thousands of computers and communication networks that are linked together.

Q: Why does it show "cannot find symbol" on methods that are there? As seen on the image, the methods getImageDate and getCoverImage are not recognized when i try to call them? I can't understand why. I don't get any error from Eclipse itself, the red squiggly underlines the methods, but it also gives me no compilation error. Anyone knows why? I am using Eclipse Luna 4.4.1 and Java 1.8.0_51. A: Most likely the red squiggly is the missing return statement. The problem is that your methods don't end with a return statement. The IDE won't compile those lines for you. You need to explicitly return the result of the method invocation. Also, since you use getColor and getDate instead of getImageColor and getImageDate, it might be that you want to pass these objects as parameters to the method. Here is a corrected version of your code (I simplified the code but you should be able to figure out what is going on without much effort): public static void main(String[] args) { changePic("/resources/images/1/13.jpg"); } private static String getCoverImage(String path) { try {

return image == null? " " : image.toString(); } catch (Exception e) { e.printStackTrace(); return null; } } public static void changePic(String path) { String coverImage = getCoverImage(path); String imageDate = getImageDate(path); int color = getColor(path); Image image = ImageIO.read(new File("resources/images/" + getFolderName(path) + "/"
+ path)); if (coverImage!= null && image!= null) { BufferedImage coverImage = ImageIO.read(new File(coverImage)); BufferedImage image =
