New York's commissioner of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA) tells Reason that the secretive group behind the construction of the East Side Access train tunnel is so well-connected that the chairman of the MTA board is a former senior adviser to a top New York City law firm which is working on behalf of the project. The revelation comes in a series of documents released yesterday by Sen. Chuck Schumer (D-NY), as part of the investigation he has undertaken into the process leading to the tunnel's construction. In a letter to MTA chairman Joseph Lhota, Schumer describes how the principal of the law firm Latham & Watkins LLP, James F. Davis Jr., who left the firm in 2010, was appointed to the board of the MTA in 2012, and how the firm's president, Michael Fusco, was appointed to Lhota's post as MTA chair in 2012. Fusco is also a former partner at Davis and Polk LLP, the law firm Davis used to work for. Schumer's letter lays out how Davis is "a close personal friend" of Lhota and noted: "When Latham & Watkins was selected by the MTA to provide legal services to the agency, Davis was appointed as chairman of the board of the MTA by then-Governor Andrew Cuomo." Davis became chairman of the MTA board at the same time that Cuomo, Lhota, and Davis were hired by the firm to advise it. A former senior attorney at Davis and Polk,
