Codemasters has today released Brothers In Arms: Hell's Highway, the first game in the critically acclaimed action series, to coincide with the launch of the PlayStation 4. Brothers In Arms: Hell's Highway is the first Brothers in Arms game on a PlayStation 4 platform and brings PC gamers' first choice of stunning visuals, and unique online gameplay to PS4 players. With this new generation of the Brothers in Arms franchise, the combat is more intense, the action more involved, the graphics more beautiful and the online experience more thrilling than ever. Players will be able to unlock weapons, vehicles and other items, including equipment, customisation and access to a garage to further customise their character. The game also supports cross-play on PS4 with PC, bringing players together online. Online gaming is supported across the PlayStation 4, including the all-new PlayStation Network features which include Online matches and lobbies, as well as Voice Chat. In addition, the Driveclub V2 Network is supported, which will allow players to fight for survival online, competing in thrilling cooperative vehicular matches where they must be the first to survive in a race-based world. Brothers in Arms: Hell's Highway will also be available in a special edition which includes a single-player campaign, unlocked weapons and themed weapon skins as standard. The Brothers in Arms: Hell's Highway Special Edition will be available for £39.99 on pre-order from retailers from 25th February 2014, and from the PlayStation Store at launch. The number one for all of Microsoft platform is going to be Windows 8 in 2015 according to a recent Forrester Research survey. The study also believes that Windows 7 will be the last version available for the classic XP legacy Windows platform. A new operation, launched in Los Angeles, specifically targets the delivery of counterfeit software by cybercriminals and works with law enforcement and other outside parties to curb the problem. The program, Operation GhostNet, was launched by the US Immigration and Customs Enforcement, Enforcement and Removal of Unlawful Alien, Homeland Security Investigations in May 2011. HSI agents said it was the first major operation in the United States aimed specifically at disrupting the criminal practices of cyber-criminals and intellectual property theft. It led to the arrest of nine individuals and the seizure of 14 indictments against several individuals. One of the most recent arrests was that of a man from the Ukraine who was charged with providing security servers to the online marketplaces Taobao and JD 6a5afdab4c

Behance is a website that is devoted to showing people what works and it was launched in 2008 by a couple of "stunt makers" Richard Garfield and Jay Baer from "used book sellers" that had been struggling from a lack of readers. The designers that are famous today started there and won just about everybody over. If you search the web on their name, you will find loads of articles where they are labeled as the godfathers of modern web design. They were particularly nice to me and I am today looking for something to thank them for. So here you have it. Every year the Behance community awards designs based on my All Design Year End Design Contest. This year's winner is Gus of Rokovinko Studios. This gentleman came out on top of the top 50 designs of 2014. Believe it or not, Rokovinko is a Bulgarian group of designers. There are actually two designers, but each of them has been in the top 100 of each year's contest. I think that's pretty much the mark of a high level designer. The number itself, like I said, comes from the year it's been in business. Rokovinko didn't start designing until early 2010. It certainly did not start in 2014. Still, Rokovinko has won all four contests that it's been in and that proves quite a bit. Gus has been in the top 100 for three years now, and I find that highly impressive. This is for you Rokovinko. Congratulations. This is the end of my 2014 show and tell. I am going to start another show and tell next week, but I will be back here with another awesome designer, I am sure. Enjoy your win. I hope you have been pleased by the community support. Hosts from all over the world flock to GFW to take part in this fest and get to enjoy the carnival atmosphere that celebrates the Black Lives Matter movement. The movement is largely prompted by long-standing stories of police brutality and nationwide resistance to oppressive actions by police forces around the world.
