* You can do many things in Photoshop, including taking a picture using a webcam or your camera's built-in one; adding special effects such as a photo booth; copying and pasting one or more images; adding and modifying colors; and more. Photoshop not only enables you to take pictures; it also helps you use a camera's basic features, like making an exposure meter or setting your camera to take a picture. * All the good products out there are found in the Adobe Creative Suite. The offer includes a collection of Adobe software products for both creative professionals and hobbyists. They consist of the Adobe® Photoshop® product, which is the industry standard for raster image editing and manipulation; the Adobe® Acrobat® product, which is a digital document creation and viewing program; the Adobe® InDesign® product, which is a desktop publishing program for people who design brochures, magazines, and books; and the Adobe® Dreamweaver® product, which is a Web authoring program to build sites for the World Wide Web. In this chapter, we explain what makes up a photo, what Photoshop can do for you with it, and the many ways you can use Photoshop to enrich your photos. Before you can work with pictures in Photoshop, you need to know a few things about your camera and its features. * * * # Lighting and illuminating your subject Professional photographers know that lighting can be everything — and more than just a professional headshot. It's the way a photo is lit that adds the mood and tone to a picture._Lighting,_ in general, refers to the use of natural light or artificial light in photography. Professional light is considered important when you're shooting against bright backgrounds such as a blue sky or other dark backgrounds. An overcast day can work for portraits, too, because it makes for soft natural light. On the other hand, if you're shooting in a dark room, with a light dangling from above, the harshness of the light is beneficial. The light in a picture does far more than just add color; it can make or break a picture. To help you get the best possible lighting for your photo, we suggest having the following in mind when you plan your pictures: * Choose your subject matter and location well. If you're serious about your photography, you should take an interest in the people you photograph. You can find subjects by visiting some of the photography clubs and sharing your

Barca hold off PSG - to play Brazil again Barcelona managed to hold off Paris St Germain 2-1 on Wednesday night thanks to a Neymar hat-trick, but will have to settle for a trip to Brazil for the Champions League final. Champions League: Barcelona 2-1 Paris St Germain Barcelona and Paris St Germain could meet again for the Champions League final on June 1 in Rio de Janeiro, says the BBC's Ian Robertson. When this Champions League campaign started, the French side had been widely expected to be as good as the Spanish side in La Liga, but they have struggled to live up to their expectations this term. In the wake of their elimination from the Champions League, there have been questions in the media about the future of coach Laurent Blanc and the ability of Thiago Silva, who has been outstanding for PSG in the absence of the injured Patrice Evra. It took a superb goal from Neymar and some poor finishing from PSG's Lucas to give the Barcelona side victory. For a while, it looked like the contest was going to be a disappointing one-way affair, but Neymar took charge in the second half. He scored in the 67th and 66th minutes, his second from the spot in the 75th after Neymar was felled by PSG substitute Marquinhos, but the French side could not hold on after that. The Barcelona players, under the command of coach Pep Guardiola, will be glad of a warm-up for the Brazilian Football Confederation (CBF) final next month. Barcelona's victory means their players have time to prepare as they will not have to make the journey back to the Nou Camp until Thursday (Sunday). The second leg of the final will be held at the Maracana in Rio de Janeiro. Barcelona are looking to become the first team in Europe to win the double, having beaten Manchester City in the Spanish league title earlier in the season. But on Wednesday, the holders had to settle for second place to their arch-rivals Atletico Madrid. Barcelona's victory also meant they were reinstated into the top four of the Champions League table, while Atletico's win left them bottom of the pack. Atletico and Barcelona will both meet again on May 20 in the Spanish Copa del Rey final, which could go a long way to deciding who will
