**Organizing Your Images** First things first: You need to figure out how to store your images. You may already have an idea of where to store images, such as on a CD or in a folder on your hard drive. The program you're using to print your images may also store them on an external hard drive. If you're a Pro shooter and don't print your images, you may have a program that

There are three main goals for bone cancer in Alaska: (1) to improve access to quality care for Alaska Native people (ANPs); (2) to share resources and promote collaboration among Alaska-based oncology investigators and Alaska Native people; and (3) to develop ways to provide clinical trial options to ANPs. The Alaska Native Center for Cancer Prevention and Control (ANC) proposes to expand the work of the nonprofit organization based at Providence Alaska Medical Center (PAMC) to provide statewide access to cancer prevention and control programming for ANPs and to conduct clinical trials to control specific and aggressive cancers among ANPs. ANC will provide this care through a combination of care coordination activities, case management and advocacy to deliver supportive services, and through clinical trials to develop and test new cancer control methods. To address the first goal, ANC's established cancer prevention and control care coordination and case management services will continue. ANC's Network member Advisory Board will provide input on ways to improve cancer prevention and control services and, for the first time, will include ANPs. ANC will also work with Native communities and other private-sector entities to increase rural access to care. To address the second goal, ANC will develop and conduct clinical trials of new methods to control specific cancers or symptoms of specific cancers in the state. ANC will apply for and be granted a Special Grant from PAMC to fund its proposal, which builds on the foundation of past successes in cancer prevention and control and on a strong set of current community partners. ANC's Clinical Trials and Pathways Component will provide the infrastructure for effective clinical trial conduct. The Component will identify patients to participate in pilot trials of new methods of cancer control. ANC will work with Community Research Advisory Boards to select among eligible and priority patients, and to develop methods for communicating with patients regarding research participation. ANC's Community Research Advisory Boards will select patients and mentor investigators, and ANC staff will help facilitate communication between the patient and the appropriate clinical trial. ANC's Community Research Advisory Boards will develop lay summaries of clinical trials for presentation to ANPs, and ANC staff will facilitate the translation of protocols into community presentations. The Component will also work with local tribal leaders and tribal health care providers to facilitate recruitment and oversight. ANC will work with tribal health care providers to recruit patients to participate in clinical trials. ANC's Community Research Advisory Boards will select patients and mentors, and ANC staff will facilitate communication between the patient and the appropriate clinical trial. ANC's Community Research Advisory Boards will develop lay summaries of clinical trials for presentation to AN

A 40-year-old woman who went missing during her flight from Paris to New York has been found dead in the Atlantic Ocean about 2.5 miles from the French island of Martinique. The Paris prosecutor's office said in a statement that the body of the victim, whose identity hasn't been released, was found late Friday. A witness said he saw the body floating near the spot where the airplane went down and notified authorities. Police are working to determine how the woman died. An autopsy has been ordered. The person who reported the body spotted it "between 300 and 400 meters from the shore" on the southern edge of the island, the statement said. The Air France plane was on its way to New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport when it went down shortly after 7 a.m. Friday. Authorities said the plane, a Boeing 757, appeared to have broken apart in midair before it went down. The flight, AF 447, took off from Charles de Gaulle Airport on the outskirts of Paris and was due to arrive in the U.S. at 6:20 a.m. ET (1120 GMT). The French interior minister told the AP at the time that the plane did not explode and investigators were looking into other explanations for the crash. The French, US and Brazilian nationalities made up the remaining 189 passengers and crew aboard the plane. The total cost of the plane and it's cargo is estimated at $288 million.

Q: Is a matrix ring a division ring? I have a matrix ring. What I know about them is the following.  $R$  is a ring  $\forall X \cdot Y = XY$  is associative  $\alpha(X) = X$  is a right automorphism I think that  $R$  is division ring because it is a field (since it's an integral domain) but I'm not sure. A: Since you have the usual definition of a ring as a set with two operations (addition and multiplication) and two constants, the only question left is whether  $M_n(R)$  for  $n \geq 2$  is associative. By using the fact that the ring structure of  $M_n(R)$  extends the usual ring structure of  $R^n$ , a general element of  $M_n(R)$  can be written as  $M = ($
