FIFA 22 is the most technologically advanced version of the world's greatest and most famous soccer game ever. FIFA is the definitive choice of millions of soccer fans around the world and is the most popular soccer video game in the world. "If you thought the gameplay of FIFA 17 was innovative and revolutionary, then you don't know what you are missing," said John Maessner, executive producer at EA SPORTS. "For fans of soccer, FIFA is the gold standard, and for years we have worked to make FIFA better and more intuitive. With FIFA 18 it feels as if we have opened the door to the future, the title that will set the future direction for football video games. FIFA is the choice of true fans and purists of the beautiful game. This version will make them proud." "FIFA 18 was our biggest and best football game yet, now we're not only taking that technology and experience into FIFA 22, but also releasing it on every platform where the fans want it - on their mobile devices and on consoles," said Andrew Wilson, senior vice president, EA Sports. "We are deeply committed to supporting mobile with FIFA globally and are looking forward to bringing the intensity of the touch-screen controls to the TV screen and living room." The new vision of FIFA 22 reflects the increased game popularity in Asia, where soccer has been rising fast in recent years. This will be reflected in Japan, South Korea, the Philippines and Australia. New graphical elements, based on 2K's technical expertise, include Real Player Motion Tech and Player Trajectories. The interactive heads-up display-style Player Trajectories transforms each player into a digital creature in stunning 3D and using animated animations, allowing for detailed interactions from a football perspective, both alone and with teammates. The new artificial intelligence was also developed to be more contextual, so that players are taking smarter and more committed decisions across the pitch.
