The Dodge tool (not visible on this image) is used to adjust the colors of an image to make them look more realistic. The Dodge tool is typically used to 'dodge' areas of an image that contain information that would distract from the focus of the image, for example if you don't want your dog's fur to be seen, you could use the dodge tool to remove it. The Eraser tool is used to remove parts of an image, and is often the first tool many people use, before moving on to brushes. The filter tool is used to apply artistic effects to images, like creating a gradient, or more realistic looking shadows or reflections. The Hue/Saturation tool is used to alter the color of an image, giving it a more realistic look. If you're trying to paint a picture, for example, you can change the colors of objects in a more realistic way. The Free Transform tool, or the Warp tool, is used to distort and move parts of an image. This tool allows you to remove image, change the scale or rotate a part of an image. The Gradient tool lets you create a palette of colors to be applied to the pixels of an image. For example, you can create a gradient that goes from a very light purple to a dark purple. This can be very helpful when you need a flat color, but you can't think of the exact color you want to use. You can also use the Gradient tool to create textures. The Gradient tool allows you to create a gradient of colors. The Lasso tool allows you to select pixels within an image. If you want to select the pixels that make up a person's face, for example, you can select the pixels using the Lasso tool. The Gradient Pen allows you to draw gradients. The Healing Brush tool allows you to adjust how damaged or blurry an image is. It's often used to improve a low-resolution image, making it look more professional. The Puppet Warp tool is used to manipulate pixels within an image. This tool can make images more realistic. For example, you could use it to change the scale of an object in an image, or to make small text into a larger, more realistic looking font. The Pen Tool is used to paint in an image.
