We thought it may have been due to a faulty hard drive but it's intermittently got through all the tests fine and is having the issue when it gets to the admin login screen - it's just stuck there and if you try to enter admin, it comes back with an error message saying it's looking for admin. If you have admin rights on that machine, have tried logging in as the account with admin rights and trying to change users - it appears to then give you the normal user's options, but when you click admin it's stuck there again with the same message. Any ideas on why this could be happening? Thanks, A: b7e8fdf5c8
