Cambridge English Dictionary. Electronic Cambridge Dictionary of English Cambridge Vocabulary Worksheets. Q: Why is this integral divergent? Given $f(x) = x^4 \ln(x)$ if $x > 0$ and $g(x) = -x^2$ if $x \leq 0$ then calculate: $\int_0^{\infty} x^4 \ln(x) \, dx + \int_0^{\infty} -x^2 \, dx$ I am not sure how to set this up using traditional methods so I tried instead to calculate the difference between the two integrals which I then took the limit as $x \rightarrow \infty$ of this difference and found that I get ∞ which means that the integral diverges. But why is that since $f(x)$ and $g(x)$ are non-negative integrands and this integral is just a weighted sum of these? Also, this is not homework, just a question which I stumbled upon while looking for different approaches to some questions in my textbook. EDIT: I checked my work and apparently I'm wrong, my mistake was that I was assuming continuity at $x=0$ which is not correct, $g(x)$ should not be continuous at $x=0$ if $g(0)=0$. The correct way to calculate this is by adding the limit as $x \rightarrow 0^+$ with $x > 0$ and the limit as $x \rightarrow 0^-$ with $x < 0$.
