Just looking at this photo I can tell that this was a special day. I love these pictures of you and your sister. Beautiful girls..So I know your mom is proud of you!Mommie's Girl (1, 2) Stained glass window and old rocking chair. You gotta love old wood! My name is Alyssa, but most everyone calls me A, Alyssa, or just A. As for the A...well that's a story for another time. I'm a wife to an amazing man and a full time midwife. I enjoy words, people, the little things in life and the bigger things. I never stop learning, never stop teaching and never stop trying to encourage other women to follow their dreams...whatever those may be! This is my first time here but I'm a bit of a crafty person. I would love it if I were to meet anyone else that enjoys this same little world. Y'all have a blessed day! What's New In?

President Barack Obama made his case for reelecting him in an op-ed for USA Today, "Stronger Together." He touched on the economy, the Iran deal, Medicare, his own experience and more in the piece. As Obama notes, he has a robust agenda he'd like to continue pursuing. (The POTUS even suggested some of the president's biggest opponents have "grown weary of winning.") He's already taking on Republicans in a nasty tone over a few votes on the House floor, including one that would have delayed his signature healthcare law, the most unpopular since its introduction. Check out the president's piece in full, and a couple of of the highlights below: The economy is growing, as we are confirming this week. The unemployment rate hit a nearly eight-year low in September, and we are making steady progress on the other major goals that we laid out when I took office—clearing away the debris from the worst economic crisis of our lifetimes, rebuilding our country’s manufacturing base, and growing an economy that’s built to last. ... But a few weeks ago, we passed a law that would have strengthened Medicare—and cut taxes for families and seniors—by helping seniors and families save more money to pay for their healthcare. For a Republican majority in the House to see the law as a target to strip away and undercut is just plain wrong. It's not just the right thing to do, it's the smart thing to do. ... When it comes to the issue of equality for women, I believe we have reached a turning point in the struggle for women's rights. ... [President] Reagan and I fought for equal pay for equal work. We signed the Lilly Ledbetter Fair Pay Act to stop discrimination. And when I am elected president, I will stand up to those who would take away women's health care by refusing to enforce a law that requires insurance companies to cover women's birth control. ... I believe, and expect, that the Supreme Court will uphold the Affordable Care Act as constitutional and the correct law. ... It's important that Americans who disagree with me on this issue not mistake disagreement for obstruction. That's not what I'm interested in. Democrats and Republicans are actually working well together to get things done. In every case where we can work together and compromise, I'll be happy to. But if you insist on continuing to obstruct,
