Brush Tip Shape: Round/Square The Shape tool allows you to create various shapes by dragging a corner of the brush over the image. However, some special shapes are available. You can create squares, circles, and arcs using the Polygon (Z), Quadrilateral (S), and Arc (A) tools. The standard shape is a square or a circle. However, if you want to create an elliptical curve, use the Arrow tool and a modified curve (the shape tool does not allow you to make a curve of any other shape). If you select any shape tool, a set of shortcut keys can be used to make the shape. For instance, the following shortcut keys will make a square: Press and hold Shift. Drag outwards from the centre of the square. Release Shift when you are just outside the square. (If you do not release Shift, the shape will become a circle). You can use the shape tool as well as the Clone Stamp or Paint Bucket tools. The Eraser tool is used to remove unwanted objects from the image. It is equivalent to a pencil or eraser tool. You can erase an object by simply selecting it with the Eraser tool. If you choose 'Erase Straight' or 'Erase Smudge' in the Eraser tool options, the tool will make a horizontal or a vertical line, and a larger area will be erased. Some brushes with no eraser tool such as the Eraser Brush can be used for spot painting. The Bitmap Brush or Bitmap Brush (used for text) loads an image as a source. Former President George W. Bush threw no punches when asked Sunday about Donald Trump's politics of fear. "I don't know who Donald Trump is," Bush said on NBC's "Meet the Press." Bush chose his words carefully as he and interviewer Chuck Todd pressed him on Trump's divisive tactics. "You can't just have the very first speech of his announcing his candidacy be a speech of fear and attacking people who are different from you," Bush said. The ex-president defended calls for "strong borders" but has typically been a non-interventionist. He also accused his chief political rival of "promising everything and doing nothing." Still, he said, he isn't worried that Trump will be able to fulfill a campaign promise to repeal Barack Obama's health care law. Bush, a Republican, was the only sitting president to not vote for Trump at his electoral-college victory party in New York on election night. Over the weekend, Trump has turned to "celebrity endorsements" with his former Apprentice competition turned reality TV star, Donald Trump Jr. introducing him to his father and former Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld. On Sunday, Bush's eldest son, George W. Bush, was stumped when asked if he thought the Trump presidency would be good for the country. "I don't know," he said. "I'm not sure I want to be in the position where I'm getting advice on all these issues." George H.W. Bush, the 41st president, is also not thought likely to endorse Trump, despite the two having been close friends in the past. On Sunday, they had a coffee with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at Blair House, the former president's official residence, shortly before the former president made the surprise appearance on "Meet the Press." "I don't know whether I would call it politics. I would call it friendship," he said. Bush said he hoped the Republican Party would return to Republican values. "I believe the election gave people an opportunity to show whether we will continue with business as usual, or return to Ronald Reagan's idea of optimism and freedom," he said. The former presidents interviewed on Sunday were George W. Bush, along with former President George
