Download it Visit the Photoshop Elements website. The homepage is nice, clean and simple. The content menu is a catch-all for most elements of Photoshop Elements, and the Help menu contains links to official support channels. The Online Help is especially useful for more experienced users. There are links to the forums, to tutorials and to tutorials for specific features (if your question doesn't have a specific answer, you can search on Google). On the main menu, there's a link for Downloading Photoshop Elements, plus some Other Sections and Help, and a link to see the individual Elements. Opening the Package As with the paid version, the easiest way to get started is to download it from Adobe's website and install it. It's a ZIP file. The first thing you have to do is extract the content. This can be done from the main folder of the package. This folder should contain a README.txt file which contains more information about the current version. Also, on the same folder, there should be a file called PhotoshopElements.rpt. This is a report of the documents, the folders and the data inside the zip file. This file is a self-extracting archive. You can extract it with an unzip application or on the command line using the WinRAR/un7z command. That's a lot of text but, in a nutshell, it contains information about the current version, where to install the software, how to install it (including to a USB stick), and how to set the computer up to avoid the warnings in the installer. The best way to install Photoshop Elements to a USB stick (or to any other removable storage) is to use the Uninstaller tool. I've always had success with the Uninstaller tool, but you may have trouble if you have a computer with a proprietary operating system. Use UninstallerTool.zip on the website. The tool will extract on your computer, but it will give you a warning that it will automatically disable System Restore after it is done. So you have to choose "Disable System Restore". If you unplug the USB stick before you start the uninstaller tool, you can set a custom location for the installer files on the USB. In the Uninstaller tool window, you 05a79cecff

Q: Navigation Control Example showing how to easily create a library When I wanted to create a navigation library for my game i.e. the tutorial shows how you can easily create a navigation library. In the tutorial using the XNA Game Studio first it will create a class library as the Name of the sample app is "Navigation" then it will create a "Game" class within which it will place all the game logic, and finally in the game class it will create an instance of the Navigation class created in the navigation class library. I have used VS2008 which lets me create projects only but not a class library. How do I implement the navigation class in a class library so that I can use it? (Sorry I didnt get anything specific to VS2005, but if you know the same process for VS2005, then tell me) Thanks A: Open your project and right-click on the project, then choose "Add -> New Item". Next, select "Class Library", and click Add. You should see something like this: Naming of the project and class: Namespace: Class: By the way, don't worry about the name of your class - it's there for your namespace. If you open a class in your existing project, it should be named something like "System.Windows.Controls.Navigation".

Stable Transformations of Be³⁺ in Be/BeO/SiO₂/Si Multilayers for Microcrystal Laser. Hybrid multilayers with different thicknesses of SiO₂ and Be/BeO layers were prepared by the reactive magnetron sputter deposition technique. The average period of the multilayers was about 70 nm. These multilayers serve as a flexible substrate for the growth of high-quality microcrystalline layers of β-BeO with thickness up to 1 μm. On the basis of ab initio calculations and the PL and SHG spectra, we showed that the structures of the interface between the Be/BeO layers and the BeO layer were biaxial. The Be³⁺ ions in the Be/BeO/SiO₂/Si multilayer are in the Be⁰⁽⁺⁾ state at room temperature and are stable in the matrix of SiO₂ and Si. We proposed the mechanism of the formation and evolution of these defects during the preparation and heating of the Si

[Epidemiology of cardiovascular diseases in China]. The relationship of cardiovascular disease (CVD) and its risk factors with mortality has been thoroughly studied. Also, the progress and problems of prevention and treatment of CVD have been summarized. In this article, both the epidemiological features of CVDs and its risk factors and the studies of prevention and treatment of CVDs are reviewed. CVD is the leading cause of death in China. The mortality of coronary heart disease (CHD) has been decreasing since the early 1990s. There are great regional differences of mortality for CVD. The rates of hypertension and diabetes in China are increasing. The prevalence of hypertension is about 28.6%, and the prevalence of diabetes is about 9.8%. The overall rates of treatment for hypertension and diabetes in China are 34.4% and 19.6% respectively. The studies regarding factors contributing to CVD and diabetes have been done in the western countries. They are useful to the Chinese population in the prevention and treatment of CVDs. The causes of CVD and diabetes are not only genetic, but also environmental and lifestyle-related factors. The effects of diet, physical activities, smoking, drinking, stress, depression, etc. on the prevention and treatment of CVDs have been confirmed. The control of CVD and diabetes is very important in the prevention of CVDs in China. Control of hypertension, reducing cigarette smoking, alcohol drinking, etc. is recommended.

Q: How to get value from a spinner I have got a spinner on which I want to take the value and make it the title of a button. I have got to the point where I can get the selected value as the text of the button but it is only one value... not a string of them. In the other text boxes I use code like `user = JOptionPane.showInputDialog("Enter the username for updating");` where I ask for a username in textboxes and it displays the result in the label. A: You need to use `JOptionPane.showInputDialog()`. There is no `getSpinner()` method. What you are seeing is the default Window's `JFormattedTextField` set to a value, and not a `JSpinner`.
