(Image credit: EA Sports) All 22 players in the match are tracked by a single camera across a 10x10 meters playing surface. Motion capture technology has been around since the late 1990s, but the evolving technology in recent years has opened the door to a vast new wealth of data. FIFA 20's "FIFA 99 Engine" was the first FIFA to use motion capture, and it delivered real-time player movement data across 15 body parts, with later titles including FIFA 11 and FIFA 14 improving on the engine. (Image credit: EA Sports) FIFA 11 used biometrics to further develop the natural movement and reaction of players, which included the voice and facial recognition. It was the first game to use emotion measurement and intent models to determine player performance. This advanced technology was coupled with a new scoring system and goal explosions, providing fans with incredible detail and a new way to experience the gameplay. FIFA 14 was the first FIFA to use a new "Ball-to-Pass" gameplay feature. It introduced the new HUD and new routines system, which put the ball at the feet of the player and allowed the player to control the ball in their preferred direction, impacting shot direction, penetration, movement direction, and more. (Image credit: EA Sports) FIFA 14 was the first FIFA to feature "player intelligence." It was the first game to track all players on the pitch simultaneously, allowing teams to simulate managers and technical directors making strategic decisions from the touchline. It also introduced "Assistant Mode," which enabled players to talk to the game's artificial intelligence and ask for instructions and feedback throughout the match. It also offered a real-time visualisation of the training routine to show the players what they need to do next. (Image credit: EA Sports) FIFA 15 was the first FIFA to use "AI Driven Tactics." It was the first FIFA to use "Factions," which gave players the ability to play a match for their own team, featuring their personalized players, customisable formations, and tactics. The title further developed the "Intelligent Post-Match Review." It introduced video reviews, visual feedback, instruction tools, auto-comments and feedback, which were all new. FIFA 16 improved on the engine, significantly adding AI-controlled players, new tackle

Fifa 22 Features Key:

- New features for Avatars: Players are now able to personalise their matches through an array of Avatars, with new player skins and outfits. With each new season, six new players are available, and unlocking them earns you new challenges. With real-life players wearing new kit every season, your custom made team is completed in real-time with the professional players that play in it.
- New Game Modes: Eight new modes give you the chance to try out new ways of enjoying a game of football, from A Matter of Urgency - who will get possession first? and Under Pressure, which tests how you fare during a sudden-death penalty shootout scenario, to Rebound Strike, which is turned around on the goalkeeper, and Rescue & Recovery, which tests how fast you can defuse a ball in goal. Overall, there are 64 new Game Modes for you to challenge the pros in.
- Exploration: Journey via the beautiful new HyperSpace in the Journey mode to a new world within FIFA Mobile. Journey into the new universe with more than 70 cinematic 3D environments and meet the hyper-advanced creatures, exotic animals and magical plants.
- New Player Skins: Choose from new-look player sets, including the Juventus Kits, HD models for the characters from the movie Mad Max, and brand new camera moves for goalies.
- Active Target: The Active Target setting allows you to maintain your ball skills, redefine how close you need to get to the ball with spring-away responsiveness, and modify momentum for quick shot.
- Hybrid Visuals: The new visual engine mixes the realistic visuals of the real Football World with bright and bold avatars. HD graphics allow you to enjoy an amazing visual atmosphere to fully immerse your game experiences.
- FIFA Ultimate Team: The all-new Ultimate Team brings together the best gameplay experience in a mobile football franchise. The online mode gives the opportunity for you to collect, trade and play with more than 1,000 licensed players from more than 70 different teams and compete in 82 new designed modes in 8 new Game Modes. The improved MyClub where you can manage your players and build the ultimate team by using both cards and real-life players.

Check the box! Good FIFA is in your box! More details and playdisc can be found on Today EA Sports announced that they've expanded the FIFA World Cup with new commentary and stadiums for Brazil 2014. EA has bolstered the game with Brazilian commentator Aldo Jota for the onsite ancillary coverage for EA's rightsholder of the 2014 FIFA World Cup Brazil™. Television producer Faleci Cardoso is also on board, bringing a new approach to onsite coverage across the BBC and ITV's different formats. The press release states some other new announcements: Fans will see and hear a strong global media presence with immediate announcement of goals and free-kick's, plus they will now have the chance to relive Argentina's penalty shoot out from a few years back. Like in real life, we also see that FIFA World Cup Brazil™ will also have a "Joga" mode, where players can take some time off from the training and get fit doing an optional training mode with some alterations to the pitch, object and AI. Seven new stadiums have been added and some are still under construction and we believe the best 50 will be in the game come June 12th 2014. Besides the additions already in live in the game, FIFA World Cup Brazil™ will implement new and improved camera work with new camera presets. It also includes a new "stadium information" panel in which players can see more details about the stadium, such as the best card for their
