EA SPORTS FIFA 20 was developed over the past two years at EA Canada's London studio. This included development on new game technology such as core physics, new player identities, live stadiums and match environments, AI improvements and more. FIFA 20 is built on more than five years of FIFA gameplay data, which feed into the upcoming game. With more than 100 million players playing in FIFA games every month, the team and studio were able to collect and work with this vast amount of data to develop the FIFA 20 experience. With more than 100 million players playing in FIFA games every month, the team and studio were able to collect and work with this vast amount of data to develop the FIFA 20 experience. With FIFA 20 the DICE team has put special focus on the FIFA Ultimate Team mode as the new game engine enables the team to create more detailed, more immersive and more lifelike game environments, which are more dynamic, compelling and reactive. The DICE team has also gone back to the lab, looking at the sport of football in greater detail and how the athletes perform. Modern players are bigger, stronger and faster than ever, but this change has also brought new challenges for the DICE team. In particular, the way the players move and the ways they can change direction have become more difficult to simulate. The six-time FIFA World Player of the Year Cristiano Ronaldo is one of the many new faces to be featured in EA SPORTS FIFA 20, along with the greatest players in the world. A new headshot mode allows players to create a custom-made Ronaldo, who can then be used in game and players can even earn a set of his FIFA 20 inventory items. Player likeness and animation style in FIFA 20 has been improved since FIFA 19. The improvements will ensure that each player now looks more realistic when performing their actions. Improved player movement has been a focus for the DICE team during the development of FIFA 20, and this has helped to create more realistic and natural looking player animations. An example of the improvements that have been made is seen in the movement of the arms and legs, which now feel more smooth and natural. Additionally, AI can now better follow the movements of the player, giving for example the ability for the defender to push or tackle the attacker from behind. EA Sports FIFA 20 launches on Xbox One, PlayStation 4, PC, Nintendo

"More and more inclusive." Our product development on the behalf of football fans is focusing on youth football development.

We unveiled our FIFA 22 announcement trailer on Thursday 7 June, and we are now excited to answer your questions on the FIFA Ultimate Team in depth as well.

As with the latest discussions regarding market balancing, EA SPORTS FIFA is listening to its fans, and has enjoyed receiving valuable input from the community on fan feedback to market balancing issues.

We will keep these discussions alive and open, and continue to welcome fan feedback.

We will be now discussing FIFA 22 gameplay in detail

We will be discussing the wide variety of gameplay elements in FIFA, including,

- "New tactics, roles and more roles." The number of tactics available to your player in FIFA Ultimate Team will increase from 22 to 35 (up from 8 in FIFA 21) and include new roles like the old "free role" that lets you play a more aggressive, offensive free role within a 4-4-2, along with a 3-5-2 and a 4-2-3-1. There's even a new passive role that lets you "pass players through" the defence.

Retraining itself in FIFA 22 allows you to have more say in your preferred style. Manage your preferred player traits (such as 'trusted,' 'attacking' or 'defensive') to stand out from your competition with the tactical player roles that FIFA Ultimate Team.
