Q: Are ethernet jacks and outlets the same? I'm trying to replace my ethernet cable, but I have a weird situation. The outlet and the jacks seem to be the same thing, and are in a box that appears to have no lugs on it. The wires seem to run inside a cable. I'm not sure which cable is the ethernet cable, but it's probably blue-white. The ethernet is working. A: The three things on the outlet are a hot wire, neutral wire and ground wire. What's the colored wire at the top? That's a run to a light switch or something. Q: Angular directive to limit number of characters in input field Need a directive where user can input only certain amount of characters but no matter how many characters they type nothing shows

Controller $scope.person = { numberValue: null, }; Directive app.directive('limitNumber', function() { return { restrict: 'A', require: 'ngModel', scope: { ngModel: '=maxlength' }, link:
  function(scope, elm, attrs, ctrl) { elm.bind('blur', function() { console.log('input blur', attrs.limitNumber); var value =
```

```
elm.val().length;
ctrl.$setViewValue(value); ctrl.$render();
}); } }; });

Any suggestions/solution will be appreciated. A: You can see a working example here:
